

VegNews

News Food Planet Travel Buzz

Buzz

Vegan Men's Fashion

By Jennifer Chen | March 26, 2012

Looking to suit up for spring? Check out this comprehensive guide to compassionate fashion and cruelty-free products for vegan men.

Rock Your Body (Care)

Opting for body-care products that don't contain animal products and finding companies that don't test on animals are all part of a vegan guy's lifestyle, and there are several companies that offer these stellar products. Solomon swears by Herban Cowboy's shaving cream, and the brand also offers vegan deodorants. Los Angeles-based natural products professional Lawrence Mortensen recommends Bulldog Natural (and who doesn't love a company that has a bulldog in its logo?). Crystal will be releasing four new deodorant sprays just for men in the fall, which we just named as one of our Best of Show products from Natural Products Expo West. Jack Black (not the actor) is a line exclusively for men, offering colognes, skin care, body wash, and shampoos for the compassionate gentleman with vegan products clearly labeled on its website. Mainstream company Aveda also sells quality men's hair and skin care.

If you want oodles more links and resources, we suggest Joshua Katcher's blog, The Discerning Brute, for all the latest and greatest in vegan men's fashion. And be sure to follow vegan tastemakers Ari Solomon (@VeganAri) and John Bartlett (@johnbartlettNY) on Twitter. Happy shopping!

Photo courtesy of Vaute Couture, photographer Erin Yamagata